Sierra College offers Business Training in Lean Principles

ROCKLIN – In partnership with the Continuous Improvement Network, Sierra College Center for Applied Competitive Technologies (CACT) will offer two one-day Lean Principles training classes from 8 am to 5 pm on January 17 and January 28 for $120 per person including a box lunch. The training will be held at Rex Moore, 6001 Outfall Circle, Sacramento. To register, contact Judy Schmidt (916) 747-2162 or judithschmidt@sierracollege.edu.

This one-day session will help participants define and understand the different types of waste that exist in an organization as viewed by customers. The mix of classroom lecture and simulation will give the participants a firsthand experience in how Lean improves quality, and increases productivity and capability while eliminating waste and reducing costs.

The Continuous Improvement Network (www.cacinetwork.com) is an association of business leaders committed to learning and sharing continuous improvement methods, founded in 2011. CIN members share information and tour each other's facilities to see best practices in process improvement.

The Sierra College CACT (www.sierracollegegetraining.com) is funded through the Workforce and Economic Development program of the California Community College Chancellor's Office. Since 1992, the Sierra College CACT has provided customized training for organizations, manufacturers and technology companies throughout Northern California.
